Jay Williams, 22, of 736 Via Somanto, Palos Verdes Estates, will enter his plea on charges of drunken driving, battery, and resisting arrest tomorrow morning in South Bay Municipal Court, the court clerk revealed yesterday.

Williams was jailed Sunday after he made a 70 mile an hour run along the narrow winding roads in the P. V. area in an effort to elude police, then attacked one of his uniformed pursuers when it failed.

Officers Bill Wintner and Ralph Walker said they began chasing the young seaman's car when it almost ran over several firemen as they were crossing the street to extinguish fire in furniture in an apartment at 418 Palos Verdes Blvd.

With their patrol car's siren screaming and red lights flashing, they followed the speeding auto as it careened around hair-pin curves for almost five miles until it halted in the

Rep. King Warns Of Impending Invasion Danger

(Continued from Page 1) billion dollars intended for aircraft construction less than 40 warned us that Russia is producing after General Vandenburg during an interceptor plane which is better and faster than anything we have been able to develop.

He rapped the apathetic attitude of Americans who "have a tendency not to be aroused until the roof falls in."

"We've been lucky so far. We've won two wars but we may not be so lucky on the third time," warned King.

The Democratic leader, with the deep lines of fatigue etched on his face from long hours of legislative battles in Washington, received a resounding burst of applause from the audience as he launched an attack against the Hearst and McCormack newspapers. He charged that the chain of Hearst-owned newspapers and Colonel Bertie McCormack, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, were casting the reputations of good men into the gutter.

"This is not the reward for a man who offers to serve his country," King offered.

"You can not imagine my emotions as I sit day after day and watch good men say and do one thing and then read altogether different story in the press," he told the audience. He charged that it is a "serious condition when the press does not present all the news."

Also taking the speakers podium was Attorney General Pat Brown, who spoke on state affairs. Brown, asked by reporters if he was going to declare his intention to run for governor on the Democratic ticket, said: "I am not prepared to release anything on that subject at the moment."

Jack Dabbs, manager of the M. and M. Enterprises, which opened a chain of theaters in Torrance and Gardena, introduced Will Rogers Jr., former congressman, who served as master of ceremonies. He also introduced the visiting dignitaries and saluted Mrs. E. B. Schwartz and her committee for the work they had done in staging the homecoming banquet.

Francis Gately, president of the Torrance Democrats, Inc., introduced Rep. King. Father Patrick J. McGuinness of the Catholic Church of the Nativity gave the invocation and the benediction.

Councilman Nick Dralle, former president of the local Democratic organization, presented the congressman with a set of monogrammed cuff links following the congressman's talk.

Stevenson Message Brings Ovation at King Banquet

A tremendous round of applause followed the reading of a telegram Saturday night from chairman of the homecoming banquet staged in King's honor at the last election, in which he saluted Congressman.

FROM: Chicago, Illinois
TO: Torrance Democrats Inc. Care Ella Schwartz chairman. I am delighted to join you in welcoming home Congressman Cecil King. He has given faithful and effective service to his state, his country, and to the political party of his choice as assemblyman and as a congressman for thirteen years.

The Democrats have always known they could count on Cecil King. Perhaps the best measure of his effectiveness is the intensity of the Republican opposition he has aroused, but I know if Cecil King continues to receive the enthusiastic support you are showing him in your welcoming home celebration this year, he will continue to come through his political battles with flying colors.

Warmest regards,
ADLAI E. STEVENSON

Fire Department To Conduct Child Safety Campaign

A special Child Safety Crusade aimed at prevention of Christmas holiday tragedy will be conducted during December by the Torrance Fire Department in cooperation with the Health Department's year-round drive to prevent child accidents in and around the home, it was announced yesterday.

The Fire Department will stress two special phases of Christmas safety: 1) the importance of using great care in the home for Christmas decorations; and 2) the need for extreme caution in the selection of toys for children.

Parents will be warned about electrical hazards in connection with Christmas lighting, both inside and outside. They will be cautioned to make certain that all light strings are in top condition with no frayed wires, cracked sockets or loose bulbs, and to inspect carefully all extension cords and wall sockets before using.

Points to be considered in selection of toys will be outlined for parents. Parents will be cautioned against small toys which may be swallowed, stuffed animals with glass or button eyes, objects with poisonous paints, and toys made of inflammable materials. They will be cautioned about giving shooting and target toys which could damage a child's eyes.

The health department conducts a year-round campaign to prevent children from being killed and crippled by accidents in the home area and each month asks assistance of some local organization in sponsoring a special phase of its program. Special materials to aid the program are provided free of charge by the Prudential Insurance Co., Western Home Office.

Next month, local doctors will sponsor a drive emphasizing the need for keeping dangerous medicines out of the reach of youngsters. In February, when bad weather keeps children indoors a great deal of the time, a local organization will be asked to sponsor a drive to check all parts of the home for safety.

Hammerton Tract Church Changes Name to Calvary

The Hammerton Tract Community Church, corner of Millton St. and Elliott Ave., has recently changed its name to the Calvary Community Church in an attempt to broaden its area of service and eliminate the limitation implied by the former name, it was revealed yesterday by Rev. Donald E. Flentge, pastor.

The Sunday School of the Calvary Community Church has entered the Sixth International Brotherhood of Christian Life magazine. Eight prizes are offered to competing Sunday Schools in each of five age groups, making a total of 40 prizes. In addition, a grand prize will be awarded to the Sunday School gaining the highest rating. The contest opened Oct. 11 and will continue through Nov. 15.

The Calvary Sunday School has adopted an airplane motif for the contest. The theme chosen is "Community Flight," and the contest slogan is "Fly C. S.—Make Your Reservations Now."

Yukon Zoning

Beverly Smith, president of the Planning Commission, said that a committee appointed by him had investigated the matter thoroughly, had talked with a number of homeowners in the area, and had recommended the zoning change.

F. J. Major, 17615 Yukon Ave. one of the property owners who favored the rezoning, said he intended to build 15 rental units on his property at a cost of $90,000 to $100,000. If the property remained R-1, he said, he would be forced to build a single-family residence on a lot 60 feet wide and 367 feet deep.

Commissioner Smith told the councilmen that, in his opinion, the city could well afford to have more rental units.
